

Junior Technical Producer

We are

AXIOM Solid Solutions was founded early 2020 because of merging 4AV Technical Productions and 4Productions. By bundling our knowledge and activities, we increased our capacity to be the creative and driving force behind many large-scale projects.

AXIOM is a vibrant, all-round production company. From providing small scale support and developing creative concepts to fully producing an event from A to Z – AXIOM does it all! We are a flexible organization, that has a creative and inventive way of working.

You are

As a Junior Technical Producer you are responsible for supporting our production team in the technical preparation and coordination of productions for our clients.

In the preliminary phase you help with the preparation and management of budgets, requesting and checking quotations, the technical drawing of structures, stages, and technical facilities, and drawing up plans and scenarios.

You perform part of the work on location, where you support our production team in the smooth realization of all plans by means of overall technical coordination for all disciplines involved. You are technical but also creative, you can divide your attention over varied projects, and you know how to perform under pressure. You work systematically and together with the team you know how to achieve the impossible.
